

You can also access this information on our web site
<http://www.mostdangerousman.org/get-involved>

When THE MOST DANGEROUS MAN IN AMERICA opens nationwide, you will have an opportunity to spend two hours in a darkened theater, enjoying and learning from the generous spirit of Daniel Ellsberg, and the startling repercussions from his acts of conscience. And then what? Will you go home, watch the news, and go to bed? Consider instead, the opportunity to:

- Connect with your friends, children, neighbors, and colleagues at work and church and temple and school to talk about the meaning of moral courage and courageous truth-telling.
- Talk to us about your ideas on how to use the film, e.g. to inspire more whistle-blowers and bolder journalists and Congresspersons like Hedrick Smith and Mike Gravel in the film, and celebrate citizen-activists like Randy Kehler.
- Recommend an educational purchase to your local library, church or school.
- Tell your friends, so they can do the same.
- Write an op-ed to your paper about the urgent need for a U.S. foreign policy that rejects empire, militarism, support of dictators and nuclear threats and instead is based on diplomacy, human rights, and fairness.
- Connect with organizations listed on this site (or recommend others to us!) whose work will advance the cause of peace and freedom.
- Share the YouTube trailer with people who might care.
- Follow Dan and the filmmakers (Judith, Rick) on Twitter (visit the web site for links).
- Become a fan on Facebook and then share it with your friends.
- Subscribe to our feed